

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. I moved to Indiana in July of 2001. Always harrassed by telemarketers at my previous residence, I jumped at the opportunity to be placed on the no-call list. It is a privelege I associate with life in Indiana. Indiana has made it clear that my privacy and peace of mind is important and that as long as I am a resident, both will be protected. Please do not take this benefit away.
